“ I briefly met travis at his property on creighton rd. i was walking my big dog and he rolled up in his jeep with lincoln. i told him i lived on his ancestors farm right next door. the old dairy farm. we chatted for awhile and he gave me permission to walk there with harley. that was last summer.

yesterday while walking i met travis' uncle mike and talked with him. as he left he mentioned something about "losing" travis. i checked the web and found the news. i didn't know, and was shocked to find out that a few months after i met him he was gone.

my heart goes out to his mom kelli and the rest of the family. in the short time i met him i really liked him. he really loved showing me his dog.

I've known Travis my whole life. He lived with me and my mom and dad for a little while and he was like an uncle to me, his birthday was 4 days before mine and even if it was before or a long time after every Holliday he would always make sure to take me out and or buy me a stocking for Christmas filled with things, even sometimes he would just take me to see him mom and I loved that so much. And his dad gave me a Denver Broncos football pillow and I've always kept that. When I found out by my mom about him passing I was instantly in tears and I was in disbelief. And I still question why he had to go every day. I loved him so much

“ I am so incredibly sorry that you are gone. This is heartbreakingly unfair!

You had so much life ahead of you, wonderful life!

In my mind, I can see your contagious grin, hear your chuckle as your easygoing personality rolled through anything.

Our time together at Double Check was such a big part of my life.

My Monkey.....climbing up high to get the equipment numbers I needed for inventory. Our weekly silly time! Oh how we laughed!

I hope you know how precious you were/are to me. Being there for me over the last 2 years, whenever I reached out for you in the darkest of times, you were always right there. You never asked me to explain why I needed to touch base or what was going on in my mind, you simply said “I’m here Heidi...Monkey is here”. Your compassion was endless and gentle kindness comforting.

The love, pride and devotion for your family, friends and beloved pets has always shown through. You would do anything to keep those you cared about happy and safe. The bond you and your mom had/have is the strongest I have ever seen. I know you are sending her all the comfort you can and you’ll be her Guardian

Angel forever.

Everyone that is lucky enough to have been in your life is blessed for that time and your absence will be profoundly felt.

I’m sure you are sitting around with Carl and Shakes, telling “remember when” stories while having a cold beer.

You will forever have a place in my heart sweet Monkey ❤️

“ He used to pick me up from school and we would go visit grandma d or go hang out in Mount pleasant. We grew apart over the last 4 years but he is still my brother regardless and I will always love you. You are survived by me and mine as well.
